For all seasons and every place.

Studio Red's tips for integrating SIRIO into your home

- Play with modularity: use the modular elements to shape the sofa around your space, from L-shapes for open-plan areas to compact layouts for more intimate rooms.
- Enhance light and space: place SIRIO near natural light sources to make the most of its light-toned fabric and amplify the brightness of the room.
- Use the built-in surface smartly: position the integrated support surface as a visual divider between seating zones or as a handy side table.
- Create layered comfort: mix cushions in different sizes and textures to add depth and a personal touch to the sofa's clean lines.
- Anchor with a rug: ground the composition with a soft, oversized rug to frame the sofa and enhance its presence in the room.
- Balance proportions: pair SIRIO's generous volumes with lighter furniture or accessories to maintain visual harmony.

Designing spaces that bring us closer.

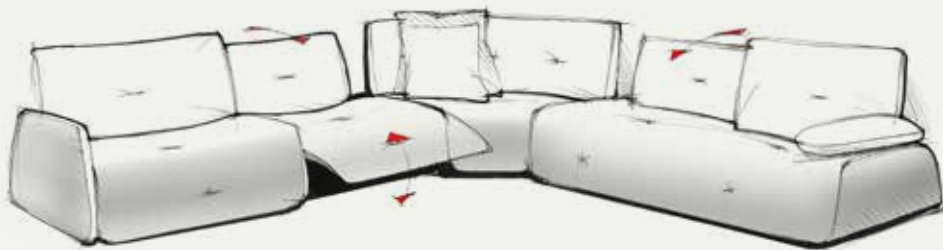

In an increasingly fast-paced world, moments of true connection have become precious. Whether it's sharing a laugh over dinner, lounging with family on a lazy Sunday, or simply being present with loved ones, the essence of well-being often lies in the simple act of being together. Conviviality, the art of joyful gathering, isn't just a cultural value: it's a pathway to a richer, more fulfilling life.

Designer Maurizio Manzoni captures this spirit perfectly in his vision for the STANLEY sofa: "STANLEY is more than just a sofa - it's a space designed for sharing. Its generous proportions, soft lines, and welcoming shape invite people to sit together, relax, and rediscover the pleasure of being close. I wanted it to feel like a natural place for conversation, laughter, and everyday moments of togetherness."

Maurizio Manzoni

Design plays a vital role in fostering these connections. Furniture isn't just functional; it shapes the way we live, move, and relate to each other. When designed with people in mind, it becomes the silent stage where stories unfold and memories are made.

Transform your living space into a wellness oasis.

Ergonomics are essential in a sofa to ensure maximum comfort and proper posture during use. An ergonomic sofa must provide proper back support, making the backrest height and seat depth key elements - a backrest that's too low or a seat that's too deep can lead to discomfort. A good sofa isn't just about aesthetics; it's an investment in physical well-being.

THE '70s
STYLE RETURNS.

The '70s are back, dominating runways and street style alike, cementing their status as one of today's most beloved trends. The iconic styles of that decade are now enjoying a revival, celebrating the ideals of freedom and vibrant expressiveness typical of the era's culture. Even in the world of furniture: soft fabrics, fringes, velvets and warm colours blend in a vintage look re-imagined for the modern day. The Lambert sofa embodies this inspiration, featuring rounded forms that give life to modular elements for customisable compositions: linear, cornered or curved. This isn't mere nostalgia. The '70s style is a declaration of individuality and timeless creativity.

STYLE, COMFORT AND PRACTICALITY: THE PERFECT SOFA.

Choosing the ideal sofa is all about balancing aesthetics, comfort and practicality. But before making a purchase, it's wise to "measure up" and ensure your space gets the perfect piece!

Space: it is essential to measure the area where the sofa will be placed to avoid ending up with a model that's too large or too small.

Comfort: test the seating to ensure the backrest and cushions provide proper support and follow the natural contours of your body.

Upholstery: choose practical materials like fabric or microfibre if you have children or pets, or opt for leather to add a touch of luxury.

Style: integrating the sofa with the room's design is always a good idea, balancing practicality, colour and your personal taste.

Our suggestion: the America sofa is versatile, modular and is features removable covers, adjustable armrests and a variety of sizes to create anything from compact solutions to larger, more intricate compositions.

The good designer's Decalogue.

Dieter Rams, one of the most influential German industrial designers in the world, has inspired generations of creators with his "10 Commandments for Good Design". One of these highlights the aesthetic quality of a product and how essential it is to its usefulness, since everyday objects greatly affect our well-being. The Jardin sofa perfectly embodies this concept: a design inspired by the 1980s, characterised by forms aimed at delivering exceptional comfort. A flawless balance of style and practicality for physical and emotional well-being.

spaces that reflect who you are.

Ever looked around your home and felt something was missing? Sometimes, it's simply a matter of colour. And when it comes to patterns and palettes, the Silhouette sofa knows exactly what it's doing! Colour holds incredible power in defining the atmosphere of a room. A bold wall colour can become the focal point of a space, adding character and depth. How about a rich navy blue in the living room for a touch of elegance? Or perhaps sage green in the bedroom for a soothing vibe? If the idea of painting feels daunting, why not try wallpaper? With modern designs and easy application techniques, you can create a stunning effect in just a few hours.

The sustainable lightness of home.

A home that feels airy, welcoming and relaxing requires thoughtful choices that create a sense of space and brightness. Here are a few tips:

• Light colours:
opt for neutral or pastel tones on the walls, such as white, beige or light grey, to visually expand spaces and reflect natural light.

• Minimalist furniture:
choose simple, lowing designs like the Golden sofa, which is linear and modern, with a delicate yet inviting style.

• Natural light:
enhance brightness with sheer, transparent curtains or mirrors to amplify the light.

• Natural materials:
use materials such as light wood, glass and rattan, which bring a sense of freshness and lightness to the space.

• Essential decorations:
pare back decorative objects in favour of a few well-selected pieces, such as indoor plants or ceramic accents.

Avant recule movement

One of the principles of great design is that nothing should feel arbitrary or left to chance. Care and precision in the design process show respect for those who will eventually purchase the product. Steve Jobs, one of the great pioneers of modern technology, famously considered even the design of the internal circuits in his computers, ensuring every product was as beautiful inside as it was outside. In our own way, the Terin sofa is a testament to this philosophy, with its meticulous attention to detail enhancing both its concept and form.

When space gives way to imagination.

Decorating the living room with creativity is an opportunity to express personality and flair. Playing with colours, daring with bold and unexpected combinations, can bring energy to the space. Multifunctional furniture and a mix of styles - for instance, combining vintage pieces with modern elements - make the space more dynamic. Walls can be enhanced with a gallery of artwork, mirrors or unique wallpaper. The key is always to blend harmony with boldness, creating a living room that feels both unique and welcoming.
